1950

Almost 30 members of the Class of 1950 and their spouses celebrated their 40th Law School reunion with a dinner at the Westwood Country Club, in Williamsville, on Saturday, June 2.

Carl A. Green was chair. Serving on the committee were Sherwood E. Freed, Hon. Thomas P. Flaherty, Hon. Irving Fudeman, Vincent M. Gaughan Sr. and James J. Hagerty. Morris Mesch was toastmaster.

During an entertaining program, Mesch reminisced about their early years together and then noted the accomplishments of the classmates. Eight have served on the bench and two were past presidents of the bar association.

Says Mesch: "We had just been through the war. That experience brought us together as a class. We have a feeling of real warmth for each other."

1970

A large number of both local and out-of-town alumni celebrated their 20th reunion over the weekend of July 20-22. Hon. Margaret J. Quinn — the sole female of the class — served as chair.

"We went to the ballgame Friday night, although very few people watched the game," says Judge Quinn. On Saturday, classmates and their families enjoyed an afternoon cruise on the Niagara River, then attended a dinner dance at the Hyatt. "We hired a band, but nobody listened to the music. We just wanted to talk to each other and reminisce," she says. On Sunday, there was a tour of the Law School.

Assisting Judge Quinn were Thomas J. Casey, Hon. Michael L. D'Amico, John W. Dorn, and Joseph A. Stoeckl. ■
